actually dared to insinuate ... represented reformers—that their methods were methods of robbers and confiscators!! Mr. Adams then proceeded to further enlighten the audience by reading the reported speech of Mr. Foster, and said, "Notice the conclusion," Mr. Foster was actually thankful there was a House of Lords. Here the Radicals ironically laughed. They always sneer at the House of Lords do these Radicals, and yet if they can only get a real live lord—any sort will do—even if it is only Lord Kimberley, Lord John Hervey, or the lord knows who to come and speak on their platform, they are as pleased as the proverbial Punch. "Mr. Foster," Mr. Adams declared, "had talked nonsense at Ipswich, which he dare not talk on any platform in his own constituency." Then uttering one or two more sage remarks, he finished his little lilt by moving a vote of thanks to the Mayor and Mr. Bedford, which was seconded by the Rev. G. Whaite, and responded to by the respective gentlemen. Mr. Bedford pleasantly remarking that he was pleased to come, and would like to come again—(silence reigned profound)—but he liked the Norfolk people—perhaps, in time, he should like the Suffolk people. He went, he said, to the Norfolk people "a stranger, and they took him in." The Doxology having been sung with emphasis, the meeting dispersed.

ALARM OF FIRE AT MR. J. WHALEY'S GRAND NEW HOTEL AT PAKEFIELD.

About 7 o'clock on Wednesday much excitement was caused in Lowestoft by the alarm that the grand new hotel in course of erection at Pakefield by Mr. John Whaley, the enterprising and public spirited proprietor of the Royal Hotel, had caught fire. The Kirkley Fire Brigade were soon on the spot, but providentially their services were not required. It appears that one of the huge lamps (Wells' patent) which are used at night so that the work can uninterruptedly proceed, and the hotel be completed in time for the coming season, somehow became misplaced, and there was great danger that the cords by which it was suspended might ignite and precipitate it among inflammable material. The promptness of the Fire Brigade and other assistance, however, prevented such a dire catastrophe, and Mr. Whaley is to be congratulated on his fortunate escape from a most unpleasant and expensive dilemma.

MR. BROADHURST AND MR. FOSTER, M.P.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "LOWESTOFT JOURNAL."

Sir.—I note that Mr. Adams has arrogated to himself, on behalf of the Liberals of Lowestoft, to assure Mr. Broadhurst that Mr. Foster was wrong in inferring that they (the Liberals) were by no means anxious to see him again in Lowestoft. This communication savours strongly of the famous "We, the men of England," manifesto of the nine tailors of Tooley Street. How many of the Liberals of Lowestoft were consulted before Mr. Adams dashed off the lucubration intended to act as a restorative for Mr. Broadhurst under Mr. Foster's crushing sarcasm?

I am a Lowestoft Liberal, and know many more Liberals in the town whose names Mr. Adams has, without authority, taken in vain. I consider that, remembering Mr. Broadhurst's efforts to injure Mr. Foster electorally, Mr. Foster was quite justified in taking the step he did at Grimsby. Further, I consider Mr. Broadhurst is thoroughly played out as a working man representative. His golfing achievements, general black coat aspirations and forgetfulness of his brethren who yet earn their pay by the sweat of their brow, have alone placed him in the invidious position he now occupies as the rejected of his old constituency and of Grimsby.

For some time it was evidently known to party wirepullers, that Mr. Broadhurst was on the sliding scale at Nottingham, and an attempt was accordingly made to foist him on the Norwich Liberal Four Hundred, but the astute working men of that city would not hear of his candidature for one moment. Mr. Broadhurst, like a good many more so-called working man candidates, has been carefully weighed in the balance and found very much wanting. Mr. Foster certainly expressed the views of myself and many brother Liberals in reference to Mr. Broadhurst's permanent absence from Lowestoft, and Mr. Adams' communication was therefore most misleading, and judging by the polling appears to have acted as a sort of Balaam's cursing in the interest of the Conservative candidate.

Yours faithfully,
NORTH WARDER.

LOWESTOFT LIBERALS AND MR FOSTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "LOWESTOFT JOURNAL."

Sir.—Permit me to ask Mr. H. S. Foster for an explanation of the charge made against the Lowestoft Radicals in his speech at Grimsby on Friday last. He is reported to have said that after Mr. Broadhurst's visit to Lowestoft, the Radicals said "They hoped he would not visit Lowestoft again." Had Mr. Foster applied that representation to himself it would probably have savoured more of truthfulness than it does at the present moment. I don't know how it is, but lately Mr. Foster has chosen several occasions to turn on the Radicals of Lowestoft. He has brought several accusations against us, charges which are more easily made than proved. We have not forgotten his oration at Ipswich a short time ago, and in the future I am determined to act upon his suggestion of "Nailing the lie to the counter." For the future I shall watch his proceedings both in and out of Parliament more closely, and endeavour from time to time to enlighten the credulous electors of his constituency. Let me start at Grimsby. I challenge Mr. H. S. Foster to mention the name of any Radical he has heard make use of the statement he alleges, either in Lowestoft or in the Division. Not only I, but the Radicals of Lowestoft demand it. His statement is as preposterous as is the amendment which he intends to move at the second reading of the Home Rule Bill in the House of Commons, making a charge that no other member in the House of Commons dare to make against a statesman who is acknowledged to be one of the grandest men the world has ever known, and of whom old England will always be proud, when and wherever his name is mentioned. Mr. Foster had better have turned to the leaders of his own party, who are stalking the land urging the poor deluded Orangemen to civil war and rebellion. If this is not treason, what is it? In olden times, aye, and in modern times, men would have suffered capital punishment for doing nothing more than the Conservative party are doing in Ireland and in this country at the present time. I see by the daily papers this week that there is to be a great demonstration of Orangemen in the Albert Hall. They are going to march from the Thames Embankment. I think the opposition might be entrusted to John Burns, with a batch of 50,000 dockers, at the sight of whom, I have no doubt, the Orangemen will run like a herd of swine, and pitch themselves into the Serpentine.

Trusting I have not trespassed too much on your valuable space,

I am, yours truly,
J. T. PORTER.

P.S.—There is no doubt whatever that fully 50 per cent. of the seats won during the last election by the Tory party, as proved by recent petitions, have been by corruption, perjury, and misrepresentation.

THE OLD COMPANY'S NEW YAWL FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "LOWESTOFT JOURNAL."

Sir,—We are very pleased to see the fund making such good progress, and hope soon to hear that the boat is commenced. She is much needed by the Company, who have not a suitable yawl to go off to vessels requiring assistance, or to remain by a ship at night. The Young Company have a fine useful craft, of which they are justly proud. Some time since it looked as if the Beach Companies would soon become extinct, but a start was made by the Pakefield men—thanks to Mr. I. O. H. Taylor, who first got them a gig, and afterwards, with the assistance of Mr. Newbon, they got the fine yawl Sir Savile F. Crossley. Then followed a new boat for Southwold, and the Georgiana for the Young Company, principally through the instrumentality of Mr. Fosbery. After the new boat was launched the Old Company started a fund of 2s. 6d. per member, headed by the Chairman (F. J. Tansley), who spoke to several gentlemen of the town and communicated with Mr. Foster, M.P. Mr. Hallam kindly undertook the position of hon. secretary, and Mr. Watson has forwarded a design for inspection. When we get our new boat we shall be able to compete with the Young Company. The Old Company has been in existence for nearly one hundred years, though up till 1833 there were three companies. The boats were owned by private individuals, and worked by the men. About that date the men took shares and an active part in the affairs of the companies which were the Old (or Down Streeters) and the Young Company. The North Road Company was formed some time after, and since their shed was washed down have moved up south of the Ness, and have shown they are worthy rivals. They have a very nice shed, and hope to get a gig this season. With respect to the Old Company they have done splendid service in their yawls in years past. They were afloat during the memorable 28th May gale, also the gale on the 2nd June, 1860, same year, and rendered assistance to vessels in the various storms of bygone days. Several crews were saved by the Old Company on various occasions in the yawls Princess Royal, Happy New Year, and Mosquito, who, but for the timely assistance would have perished. They have gone to Gravesend, Harwich, Sheerness, and Malden with vessels. We have not been able to carry on the work lately for want of a new yawl, a want that has been much felt. When we have got our new boat we shall be able to go to the assistance of vessels, also forming a good training boat for the young members, who get little practice in beach work now. We also hope to save money to the funds of the R.N.L.B.I. by using our yawls instead of the lifeboat, and trusting the new boat will become as famous as the Georgiana.

Yours truly,
OLD COMPANY.

POISONING OF CATS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "LOWESTOFT JOURNAL."

Sir,—There are in Lowestoft some most unfeeling persons who poison inoffensive animals simply for the mere fun of the thing as they seem to regard it. I have recently had a cat poisoned by some unknown scoundrel or scoundrels. It was a faithful creature and a great pet with my whole family. I hope that steps will be taken by the authorities to detect and punish these poisoners at the earliest opportunity.

Yours faithfully,
FELINE.

High Street,

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "LOWESTOFT JOURNAL."

Dear Sir,—I feel it my duty to say a word or two with reference to the fowls, etc., which were killed by dogs belonging to Mr. T. Harmer, of Beaconsfield Road, Kirkley. Being a working man I sympathise with him, and as it is now rumoured about the town that his dogs were seen in company with two men during the evening the fowls were destroyed, he (Mr. Harmer) will give £2 reward to any person who will give such information as to whom the men were that were seen in possession of the dogs.

goods and property, as trustees of the Federation, were entitled to bring an action, and that without proving their title other than the present possession. The questions of the bona fides of the persons who claimed to be the trustees, and whether they had been validly appointed, were not entered into by the Judge. Although the defendants were quite ready to submit evidence totally denying the plaintiffs' claim to be the trustees; they were not allowed to do so. The Judge recommended that the plaintiff should reinstate the officers and settle their differences amongst themselves; but it is not at all likely such advice will be acted on by the plaintiff. There are other actions pending that may clear away some of the claims, and which may also enlighten the members of the N.F.F.G.B. and I.

MR. CLEVELAND has finally decided not to call a special session for the repeal of the Silver Purchase Bill, as there is still a doubt whether such a measure would be passed by Congress. He relies on the growing sentiment against the Bill, in the meantime impressing members sufficiently to make the repeal a certainty in the autumn.

THE remarkable reception given to Lord Randolph Churchill by the Conservative party meeting at the Carlton Club on Wednesday was much talked of in the lobby of the House of Commons. It exceeded in warmth that tendered either to Lord Salisbury or Mr. Balfour. It is regarded as an incident not calculated to strengthen the hands of the present conjoint leadership of the Opposition in the House of Commons. Lord Randolph Churchill had attended the meeting without intention of taking part in the proceedings, and yielded only to the persistent call with which he was greeted.
